Citation Guidelines

Cite Canadiana as the source

If you use or reproduce materials from the Canadiana Collection in any format, cite Canadiana as the source of the material, rather than just citing the material itself. Citing Canadiana as the source helps direct other researchers to this resource. By crediting Canadiana, you are also helping us demonstrate the important role that Canadiana has in research, which is critical to ongoing funding of the collection. Please also include the persistent URL for the item in your citation. Persistent URLs are available in the Details sidebar when you view an item.

In cases of discrepancies between the item and its metadata, use the information on the item itself. Please let us know if you find errors in the metadata to help us make corrections.

Send a copy of your work to CRKN

We also would love to hear from you about how you use the Canadiana Collection. This can help us continue to develop the collection in ways that serve your needs and interests (see below for our contact details).

If you have created a publicly available work (like a publication, dissertation, thesis, paper, conference proceeding, creative work, news item, or documentary) that makes use of materials from the Canadiana Collection, please send a copy or a link to your work to CRKN. Sharing your work with us helps us better understand and highlight our impact.
